He Will Spread Oil on the Troubled Tariff Waters To-Day.

Senator Sherman Gives Out that Republicans Will Fight to the Bitter End-Bland and the Veto.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, April 1 .- Senator Sherman confirms the general belief that the debate on the tariff bill, which begins in the Senate to-morrow, will necessarily last a long time, as the Republicans will interpose every obstacle at their command. "The Republicans have several programmes for action," said Senator Sherman to-day, "but they do not care to make them public in advance." This statement from so prominent a member of the finance committee disposes of the Democratic calculations that debate on the tariff will be concluded in four or six weeks. Senator Sherman says he has not yet begun the preparation of his speech, nor will he until he has heard some of the arguments advanced by the majority. He does not know when he will speak, and will be guided in that respect by future developments. The event of to-morrow will be Senator Voorhees's speech. Mr. Voorhees has spent days in the preparation of his remarks and has had the customs branch of the treasury engaged for weeks collecting data and preparing figures to support his theories. The speech will be intended principally for consumption in his own State, where Governor Matthews has availed himself of the general discontent over the Voorhees bill, as the amended Wilson bill is beginning to be known, to begin an active campaign for Mr. Voorhees's the Senate. Senator Voorhees will make elaborate statements in explanation of the whisky and sugar items and will defend himself against insinuations of too tender a regard for the interests of the Terre Haute distilleries. In the flery interview between himself and Governor Matthews last week he invited his competitor to remain in Washington and hear

The tariff bill will be taken up for consideration in the Senate to-morrow at 2 o'clock in accordance with the agreement arrived at in committee on finance and with the notice of chairman Voorhees to that effect, and will in all probability be the prominent topic of debate during the entire week. There are other measures which may claim attention, but none are likely to receive it without the consent of the managers of the tariff bill. Other questions which may press for consideration during the week are the Chinese treaty and the proposed bill for the regulation of the Bering sea seal fisheries. The pension and fortifications appropriation bills are also on the calendar and can be considered at any time, but they will not be pressed for the present. The tariff bill will be the only order after 2 o'clock each day of the week. Several amendments to the tariff bill will be offered on Monday by the committee on finance, after which the speaking will begin, in which Senator Voorhees, as chairman of the finance committee, will lead off. He will be replied to by Senator Allison, but beyond these speeches it is not known in what order Senators will be heard. It is quite likely that Senators Mc-Pherson and Hill on the Democratic side will speak early in the week, and it is known that on the Republican side of the chamber Senators Hale, Lodge, Cullom, Hoar, Hawley, Morrill and Mitchell, of Oregon, are prepared to speak, but it is not probable that even a majority of those can be heard during the present week. Indeed, if the speeches should prove to be long, as many of them will, it is likely for the present not more than one will be heard in a day. Senator Peffer is also expected to speak on the tariff this week or his utterances, but Matthews declined.

The Democratic members of the Sanate committee on finance have completed the formulation of additional amendments which they desire to make to the tariff bill, and will have them in shape for presenta-tion on Monday before the debate begins. These amendments could be offered at any time before the bill is disposed of, but they desire that the bill should be complete before its consideration is under way. There will be several of the amendments, the most of them providing for changes in the ad-ministrative part of the bill, but it is understood that there will also be an effort based on the committee's last revision, to have some of the schedules slightly changed. After the close of the general debate on the bill, and when the schedules are reached, it is the purpose of the Republican members of the finance committee to offer as amendments the rates of the McKinley bill on each paragraph.

Will Rake the President.

WASHINGTON, April 1 .- An exciting week is predicted in the House. On Tuesday, according to the notice served by Mr. Bland on Friday, he will ask the House to consider the President's veto of the silver seigniorage bill and will move to pass the bill over the veto. As it requires a twothirds vote to override the objections of the President there is little hope that Mr. Bland's motion will be carried. But, nevertheless, it is expected that the debate will be of an exceedingly lively character. The silver men are in a state of revolt and they avow their purpose to rake the administra-tion fore and aft. Some very outspoken criticism can be looked for. The debate on the proposition to pass the bill over the veto may last all week if the silver men are so disposed, as the Republicans will be glad to join with them to prevent a limit being placed on it. When the veto message is disposed of the House will again go back to the appropriation bills. The struggle over the O'Nelll-Joy contested election case will be resumed to-morrow. Although it has been apparent since this case has been up that at least a dozen Democrats are opposed to seating the Democratic contestant, the partisan feeling engendered during the last three days of the filibuster has served to drive those who were lukewarm into camp, and while they will probably not vote for O'Neill they will at least lend their votes and presence to make the necessary quorum to seat the St. Louis Democrat. The English-Hilborn case will follow, and so far as known the Democrats are united on the proposition to seat English, the contestant.

For the Michigan City Harbor, Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, April 1.-Hon. Martin

Kroeger, Mayor of Michigan City, is in the city, accompanied by Messrs, James Gallagher and John Tyler, who have been delegated by the Michigan City Board of Trade to co-operate with Representative Conn in having the appropriation for improving the harbor of Michigan City increased. The appropriation at present in the river and harbor bill will not suffice to keep the inner harbor clean, and unless it be sensibly increased the city will be compelled to appropriate a large sum out of its own treasury. Mr. Conn will en-deavor to have an amendment adopted restoring the appropriation recommended by the government engineers.

90,000 at the Midwinter Fair.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.-The children of California had another glorious day at the midwinter fair yesterday, and as special guests of the San Francisco Chronicle fairly took possession of the grounds and all the exhibits and concessions there-in. No child was denied admission, whether he had a ticket or not. They came from San Francisco and neighboring cities with their parents or other adult guardians, until the total admission for the day reached the total of 90,907, about equally divided between young and old, breaking the fair record and making altogether the largest number of persons ever assembled in one place west of the Rocky mountains. Among other attractive features of the day's amusement was a grand procession of concessionaires, a special programme of amusements at the grand stand, athletic contests on the recreation grounds, a splenillumination and a dazzling pyrotechnic display, abundant free cake and soda water, and gratuitous entrance to nearly all the concessions. Three or four hundred children managed to get lost during the excitement, but they were promptly corralled and returned to distracted parents on application. There were no serious accidents, and the day was altogether one long to be remembered.

BACKING OF $37,000,000.

Big Russian-American Transportation Company Formed.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1 .- A local paper makes the statement that a company has been organized to operate a large fleet of steamships between Vladivostock, the eastern terminus of the great trans-Siberian rallway, and some point on the Pacific coast, probably Sandiego. The organization is known as the Russian-American Direct Transportation Company, with a capitalization of $37,000,000, and among its backers are American capitalists, among whom are several largely interested in the Santa Fe railroad. A contract has been made with the Russian government for carrying the mails for a period of fifteen years, during which time a vessel must be constructed each year. For these vessels negotiations are now pending in New York. The Union Iron Works, of this city, are to construct others.

BUDD DOBLE IS BACK

Work at the Terre Haute Stables Will Begin This Week.

Little Rock, Ark., Derby To-Day-Western League Teams Lose at Louisville and Cincinnati.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 1.-Budd Doble, who landed in New York last week on his return from a wedding trip in Europe, sends word that he will be here this week to start the work at his stables. Charley Doble bought at the Harriman sale in New York, last week, the brown stallion Nutpan, 2:241/2. Doble drove him last year, and believes that he can pace in 2:12. The stallion Margrave's first colt, a bay filly, arrived last week. Its dam is by Robert McGregor.

A $25 payment in the $11,000 futurity stake for four-year-olds for the Fair association's great meeting in August will be due to-morrow. Eighty-three are yet on the list, and it is thought that fifty will make this payment, and not less than twenty-five the final payment of $100 on the night before the race. There is no longer any doubt that the full value of the stake will be $23,000. Among the starters will be Jayhawker, Margrave, Silicon, Axle, Bell Bird, Altivo, Rowena, Hustler, Cytheria, Wistful, Frou Frou, Sabledale, Dancourt, Greenlander Girl, Cleopatra, Wilmarch, Anthelia, Inglenook and Mary Best. Jayhawker will come to George Starr's stable this week. Starr already has ten head in the stable and more are coming. He will take personal charge this week. Six horses belonging to J. D. Brinker, of Butte, Mont., arrived last week, including a brother and sister of Ellard, people wended their way to the race track to-day. No work was done by the horses. All the derby candidates and many others were taken out and cantered a mile or so but the hard work had already been done, leaving nothing for them to do but wait for the bugle calling them to the post. The trainers of the derby candidates seem to be perfectly satisfied with the condition of their horses. Should no more rain fall the track will be fast to-morrow afternoon. Under the racing rules owners are not required to name their derby starters until twenty-five minutes before the race is to be run. It is sure, however, to say that at least nine horses will start in the derby. They will be: Bedford stable's Bedford, J. E. Cushing's Tlisit and Oakwood, Hardy Durham's Pittsburg and O. H. No. Guy & Co.'s Frank Gayle, Scoggan Bros.' Buckrene, Mr. E. C. Headley's John Cooper and Stubbs Bros, Powhatta, Caesar Weatherford has two candidates on the ground and may start one of them. In that case Satellite will probably carry his

On public form Oakwood should win the John Cooper has many ardent admirers and will carry a great deal of money. Indeed, he will in all probability go to the post favorite. Cooper is a fast colt, but appears to be a trifle short, and in the company which he will be in tomorrow may militate against him disastrously. A careful study of the different candidates leads to the conclusion that Oakwood should win. Buckrene is likely to run second, and John Cooper may get third money. Pools were sold at the Capitol Hotel last night on the derby as follows: John Cooper, $40: Lazzaroni, $24; Oakwood and Tilsit (Cushing's entry), $12; Buckrene, $16; Durham's entry, $8; Weatherford's entry. $8; field, $18.

New Race Course Near Cincinnati. CINCINNATI, O., April 1.-A new racing association was formed here to-day. The capital stock was fixed at $150,000, of which $44,000 was subscribed at the meeting of its promoters to-day. About twenty-five were resent at the meeting. The new track will be located in Campbell county, Kentucky, across the river from Cincinnati. The leading members of the association are Horace B. Dunbar, J. E. Haley, Jacob Fechheimer, Elliott Marfield and Marshal Halstead.

CATHOLIC SERMON AT HARVARD.

First Time a Papist Has Ever Formally Preached There.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 1.-The first regular sermon ever given in Harvard University by a Catholic preacher was delivered in Appleton Chapel to-night. Father Peter J. O'Callahan preached a most powerful and impressive sermon before a crowded congregation. The occasion was a memorable one, being the first really cordial recognition Harvard has ever given a Roman Catholic priest, though there have been informal addresses before this. President Charles W. Eliot and hundreds of Harvard students, besides many outside people, filled the chapel to overflowing. Father O'Callahan graduated from Harvard in the class of '88. He is now a member of the Paulist Order, and well known in New York. His text was from the ninetythird Psalm: "Thy testimonies are becoming exceeding credible."

LONDON, April 2.-A special to the Standard from Nice says that at a dinner given on Saturday by Baron De Rothschilds Mr. James Gordon Bennett announced that he would give three prizes to be competed for in next year's yachting regatta. Each prize will be worth £1,000. Baron De Rothschild then promised that he would give three prizes of £200 each for the same Breckinridge Dare Not Deny Mrs. Blackburn's Testimony.

His Adroit System of Attempting to Discount the Lady's Evidence-The Colonel Not at Cincinnati.

WASHINGTON, April 1.-Although the Pollard-Breckinridge scandal has dragged through the Circuit Court for three weeks to the exclusion of other cases equally important from a financial standpoint, it promises to hold the boards for two weeks more. Judge Bradley has lengthened the daily session of the court one hour by sitting until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, thus breaking the time-honored custom under which the local courts have always gone to finish work at 3 p. m. But despite this additional hour, which means a gain of one day in a week, the lawyers do not expect to be able to deliver their valedictories to the jury before the last of next week. Congressman Breckinridge will continue on Monday the recital of his version of the nine-year intrigue with Madeline Pollard and he may consume the entire day in rounding out his story, after which he will pass into the hands of ex-Judge Jere M. Wilson for cross-examination. From this inquisition the followers of the trial are anticipating their choicest entertainment, for the jurist and the ex-Congressman from Indiana has a well-earned reputation as the most trying man who could be selected from the local bar to rake a witness. He is no respecter of persons in the court room, following faithfully the axiom that all men are equal in the eyes of the law, and he has an unusual facility as to planning traps for a witness, leading him along different lines of inquiry which seem harmless, considered singly, and then combining the conclusions therefrom in one question, which puts the victim on record in another light.

Miss Pollard and her lawyers have busied

Colonel's testimony, from which they expect to draw material for cross-examination. The "Kentucky colony" here has been keyed up to a frenzy of anticipation regarding the course that Colonel Breckinridge would take in attempting to refute the testimony of Mrs. Blackburn. Had he accused the widow of the Governor of Kentucky of misstating facts trouble would have been likely to follow, for that lady has friends of her own family and State who were expected to resent any reflections on her veracity by other than legal methods. No such complications have arisen so far and no provocation has appeared for a breach of the peace. In the most part Colonel Breckinridge's account of the episodes to which Mrs. Blackburn was a witness has agreed with her statements, only he has declared that the representations of an engagement were part of a preconcerted plan between himself and Miss Pollard whereby the young woman might preserve her reputation. those passages of the interviews of which he has given an account differing from Mrs. Blackburn he had said diplomatically that his recollection differed from hers. No trouble is expected by the Breckinridge forces from the writ signed by Speak er Crisp summoning him to appear at the House to help make a quorum for the Joy-O'Neill election contest. A formal statement to the House of the exceedingly important business which demands his pres ence elsewhere will probably lead the House to make an exception in his case from the order revoking all leaves of absence which was passed last week. There will be but little testimony for the defense after Colonel Breckieridge leaves the stand, and most of that will be in the form of depositions. Then the rebuttal for the plaintiff will come, in which Miss Pollard herself will probably take the stand again, and the old principal of the Wesleyan College will be called to refute the testimony of Rankin Roselle, to whom Miss Pollard was engaged in 1884. Dr. Brown will testify that Roselle could not have called to see her two or three times a week, as he said, because the rules of the school, which were strictly enforced, permitted visitors only on Friday nights in the presence of the teachers. She will deny that Miss Pollard prepared to go with him to Chicago, as she was only per-mitted to kiss him good-bye under the starchlight of a teacher's gaze. After the rebuttal there may be witnesses for surrebuttal, and finally will come the closing arguments of the attorneys, from whom the city is expecting great efforts, as the reputations of the gentlemen and the material in the case justifies. Since the belligerent outbreak near the beginning of the trial the personal relations between some of the attorneys have been visibly strained, although they have for the most part observed scrupulously the courtesies of the court room. Mr. Shelby, the law partner of Congressman Breckinridge, at whose expense the papers were disposed to make fun because of his belligerence has shown himself one of the most mild-mannered and gentlemanly attorneys in the case. Although he has not expressed regret at his early action, he has frequently deplored the necessity for it, which, under the code of honor which obtains in his section, made imperative on him to resent the remarks of Mr. Johnson. Masonie Expulsion Story. LOUISVILLE, April 1 .- A special to the Courier-Journal from Lexington, Ky., says: In an interview to-day Judge J. Soulesmith, past grand master Mason of Kentucky, when asked about the report from LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 1.-Captain Fred | Frankfort that Colonel Breckinridge would be expelled from the Masonic fraternity, said: "I know nothing whatever except what I have seen published. The Frank-fort lodge could not expel him. Colonel Breckiridge is a member of Lexington Lodge, No. 1, at this place, and could not be expelled by any lodge to which he did not belong. He was initiated here July 20, 1874, passed Sept. 4, 1874, and raised Oct. 19, 1874. Asked if he knew whether the father of Miss Pollard was a Mason, he said "I do not. His name does not appear in the list published in 1859 by Bob Morris. I never heard of him as such before this trial. As far as I can learn he never was an officer of the grand lodge. He may have been a Mason. I do not know."

No Sign of the Colonel. CINCINNATI, April 1.-The Burnet House yesterday received from Washington a telegram engaging quarters for Col. Breckinridge to hold a conference there to-day with his constituents. The Kentuckians appeared, but Colonel Breckinridge did not come and some of his constituents suspected they were among the victims of all fools day. One man wanted to collect a bill for back bire, another had driven over eighteen miles to see the Colonel and renew his allegiance. There were fully one hundred disappointed visit-ors, among them being W. H. Sprowl, of Louisville, a great admirer, who had a certified check for $10,000 to back his support of Breckinridge for renomination for Palmistry.

Harper's Bazar. Since palmistry became a social amusement people have reason to be careful of the inside of their hands, written over with this line and with that, lest they be seized upon and be read to their dismay, the survey of the lines there puffing them up with concelt of themselves or putting them to open shame in the face of folk. "I would not trust out of sight the best friend I had in the world," said recently an enthusiastic prophet of the art, "if I found the line of truth did not join the line of life before leaving the hand." And if she were justi-fied in her statement, what complications and perplexities might ensue to the adherents of the art. The next thing in the advance of the matter might be that no lover would propose to the damsel who had filled his eye and touched his heart until he had looked at her wrists and certified to himself the absence of the bracelet of command there, lest he should see before him the fate of Dame Partlet's mate. Perhaps, too, the young lady's father would find it necessary to compare the right hand of her lover with his left when he had stammered his wishes into the paternal ear, and thus discover what traits he had developed in his right hand by scanning the original lines in his left one, what good tendencies had increased, if any, and what evil ones had been suppressed in his growth, and if, make a good husband. The mother-inlaw-to-be may also think fit to examine the line of life of the proposed bride of her son and see if it be crossed by the mark of serious illness or otherwise in order to judge if it is best for her son to encumber himself with a sickly wife; or she may even look for the stars that signify the number of marriages this young woman is to-con-tract that she may thus forecast her son's chances of long living.

BY THE LAKE ROUTE. String of Nineteen Boats Filled with Grain Leave Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 1 .- The season of navigation for 1894 opened at noon to-day, and boats that were laden with grain and moored in the river were at liberty to start on the trip down the lakes to Buffalo. There was a manifest reluctance on the part of owners to move their craft, for out of the immense grain fleet that fills the river only nineteen left the harbor. The first of the fleet to get away was the big steel steamer E. M. Peck. The other boats were slower in starting. They started on their course strung out in a long line resembling a naval parade. They were the Majestic, W. H. Barnum, Iron King, Iron Queen, Iron Chief, Iron Cliff, Iron Duke. Iron State, Iron Age, Iron City, John Oakes, Redwing, Minneapolis, Sandiego, John Eddy, John Shaw, A. A. Parker and B. W. Parker.

OUTBREAK FEARED TO-DAY.

London World.

Extraordinary Precautions to Keep Down East Liverpool Strikers.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 1.-There has been no renewing of the rioting among the striking potters since last night, although it is expected there will be further disorder to-morrow, election day. The Mayor has issued a proclamation forbidding the assembling of crowds on the streets, and has called on the sheriff of Columbiana county for assistance in preventing an outbreak to-morrow. The sheriff has sent word from New Lisbon, the county seat, that he will arrive in the morning with a force of fifty or one hundred deputies. If that force proves inadequate the Mayor says he will appeal to the Governor for State troops.

DOES IT PAY? The Reduction of Flesh Ages the Patient-All London Doing It.

The hygienic craze has permeated society to quite an incredible extent. It has become almost a point of honor with us all to be slim. I have thought the whole matter out, and, having watched the various patients of the two great doctors who have made corpulence their special study, I have this case, as in all others, make your choice between two evils. It is a question now of face or figure. That the very stoutest people can decrease their size by following strict dietetic rules cannot be doubted, since a duke has lost seventeen inches of girth and a lady lost two or three stones in weight in two or three months; but I am sure of one thing: I am sure it ages the patient, and I would recommend any comely lady of middle age and fair proportions to leave the cure alone. It is only young people just beginning to grow stout who really benefit by it. If the stretched skin is no longer filled out it must fall into wrinkles, and these are distressingly ugly. Shall I give you the diet, which nearly everybody has tried, or is trying now, and which both the great doctors recommend, with variations? Here it is, copied from a diet card. 8 a. m.-Sip three-quarters of a pint of hot water. 9:30-Two cups of tea with nothing in it, unless saccharin; one ounce of dry toast, eight ounces of lean meat or fish. 11-Sip a tumbler of hot water. 1:30-Ten ounces of lean meat, or fowl, or game, six ounces of stewed fruit. 4:30-Tea as at breakfast, and one or two special biscuits. 8 p. m .- Four ounces boiled fish, four to six ounces of lean meat, six ounces of stewed fruit. And you may have brandy or whisky and soda when you go to bed. At lunch or dinner you may have any vegetables that grow above ground-not roots; and you may drink brandy, or whisky, or dry Moselle, as advised; One doctor recommends particular Moselles; one doctor recommends particular biscuit; and if one doctor is more fashionable because he numbers royalties among his patients, the other charges only 4 instead of 25 guineas. Both allow you to drink at meal times, which is something of a concession. I have heard many people say that not to drink at meal times is in itself a cure for stoutness. Several people, among them a very pretty, smart woman (she is a well-known countess), rave about the lady doctor in Grosvenor street, and declare that their faces as well as their figures have been improved by a system of electrical massage. Everybody recommends exercise, and it is wonderful to see how many people do walk nowadays.

CONCERNING A TRAINED TASTE. Flavors of Cigars and Wines Not Easily Distinguished.

The solid and potatious bankers in the Union League Club, described in our New York correspondence, each of whom called day by day for his favorite whisky and loudly argued its individual merits and special flavor, when, as a matter of fact, all were getting their whisky out of the same barrel, represent a large class of men who labor under a like hallucination in regard to whisky, wine, cigars, tea and all else that can be tasted. The man scarcely lives, who uses these articles at all, who does not cherish in his heart a deep conviction that he has a trained or inspired taste, born of genius or got by practice, which enables him, like the Akhoond of Swat, "To tell what's what. Men smoke cigars and talk about the flavor. They sip wine and enlarge on its bouquet. They drink whisky and pretend to know its age and brand. They draw tea, if they are tea drinkers, and imagine they know one tea from another. There are men who can. A good tea-Ceylon tea was grown and how it was cured. A man who knows clarets can detect and tell the mix when two vintages are poured together. A sherry taster will fix year and vineyard with unflattering accuracy. There appears to be no limit to the accuracy to which the palate can be

But these men give their lives to the work. They begin early and are always tasting. If it is tea, no wine is ever taken. A sherry or claret taster must never touch brandy. Carelessness in food, too many curries, too much pepper, a strong cigar, will ruin the delicate gauge in the palate which habit, practice, experience and observation have established.

Unless a man has this training, has given years to acquiring a trained palate and keeps it in rigorous order, he is simply fooling himself when he thinks he can detect the subtle difference of aroma, bouquet, flavor and perfume which determine the various teas, wines, cigars and liquors. Yet to the end of time men will go on, pretending a knowledge they have not and a taste they cannot acquire without long and patient training, and displaying the gratuitous hypocrisy of the man who as-serts a knowledge of wine and cigars, and laying themselves open to the ridicu-lous exposure of the solid New York bankers at the Union League.

POACHED EGGS.

The Man with the Hare Lip Had a Difficulty with the Waiter.

The man with the hare lip was hungry. He went into a State-street restaurant and at once got into trouble with the waiter because of his inability to pronounce the letter "p." He studied the coffee-stained bill of fare and then said: "I want four foached aigs." When the waiter returned he deposited before the guest four slices of pork. The hare-lipped man looked at the meat, then at the waiter. "I didn't order that," he said.

"Dat's what yo' ohdahed, sah," replied the darkey. "You sayd yo' wanted fo' po'k

"Well, what yo' kicken about? Dere's your fo' po'k steaks." The hungry man first made sure that the Senegambian was not guying him and then

"See here, my friend, I don't suppose you ever lived on a farm." The waiter said he hadn't and the colloquy proceeded by the following circuitous route, in order to avoid the lingual rock on which the hungry man's gastronomic hopes had been wrecked at the outset: "Well, you know what a rooster is?"

"Yes, san; saw one on Soaf Watah street "You know what a rooster's wife is?" "Dey youster call 'em hens.' "You know what a rooster's wife's children are "Chickums." "You know what a rooster's wife's chiliren afore they're hatched are?" "Algs."

"Well, I-want-four-rooster's-wife's-children-afore-they're-hatched foached." It is said that if a team is inclined to pull unevenly the trouble may be remedied by unhitching the inside traces and crossing them, so as to have the same horse tached to the same end of each single-

Final Ceremonies at the Burial of the Hungarian Patriot.

BUDA PESTH, April 1.-An immense crowd of people from all parts of Hungary and many from Austria is in the city. The great center of attraction was the National Museum, in which the body of Kossuth is lying in state. It is estimated that at least 150,000 persons of all classes walked past the catafalque. Several impressive incidents marked the day. One was the visit of a large number of maidens from Transylvania, clad wholly in white, who deposited wreaths on the coffin. The Veteran Honved Hussars also attracted much attention. The five thousand inhabitants of Czegled, who walked in a body the long distance from there to Buda Pesth in order to pay their last token of respect and love to the great Hungarian, arrived safely, and their visit to the hall was one of the noteworthy incidents of the day. The streets were thronged the whole night by constantly arriving dep-

The funeral services were held in the vestibule of the National Museum in the presence of the Lutheran bishops, members of the Hungarian Diet and the Hungarian magnates. After the singing of the national anthem, in which all present joined, Bishop Sarkany delivered an oration in which he eloquently extolled the patriotic services of Kossuth. Maurice Jokai, one of the leading Hungarian writers and a member of the Diet, followed, speaking on behalf of the Lower House. He dwelt at length on the self-sacrifice Kossuth had made for his country, concluding with a touching farewell to the dead patriot. His words moved many of his audience to tears. The Burgomaster of Pesth said that the grave of Kossuth would become a place of pilgrimage for Hungarians, every one of whom felt the deepest gratitude for the services Kossuth had rendered his country.

When the funeral services at the Museum had been concluded the coffin was conveyed to the funeral car, to which were attached eight horses covered with mourning caparison. The funeral procession isted of twenty special cars, bearing between two and three thousand funeral wreaths. Then followed six hundred Honveds. All wore medals. Included among the regimental colors carried was the celebrated "black flag" with thirteen death-heads in memory of the martyrs who fell in the suppression of the revolution of Arad. Firemen formed a guard on each side. The cortege occupied two hours in reaching the cemetery. The streets through which it passed were densely crowded. Not a wirdow nor a roof along the route was uncccupied. Business, much of which is usually done in Buda Pesth on Sundays, was at a complete standstill, all the houses being closed. Everybody wore mourning, and the city presented a scene that was never before witnessed here.

The members of a thousand deputations carrying wreaths and banners followed the Honveds. As the procession moved along choirs sang national airs and Kossuth-Lieder. As it passed the opera house thousands of persons massed on the steps sud-denly joined in the Kossuth hymn. From the opera house on there was an intermittent rising of patriotic songs from the There was no disorder. No police was visible anywhere along the route except at the crossings. When the gates of the cemetery were reached the funeral car stopped for a moment. Only the pall-bearers, consisting of thirty members of the upper house of the Diet and thirty members of the lower house, headed by their respective vice presidents, the Honveds' officials and Kossuth's relatives, were admitted into the cemetery. Throughout the march from the National Museum to the cemtery Kossuth's sons, Fritz and Louis, walked behind the coffin. They were surrounded by a detachment of students carrying the principal

The final ceremony, though simple, was impressive. Several speeches were made by representatives of the independent party and by Honveds who served under Kossuth. After the singing of a chorale the coffin was lowered into the temporary vault. At this moment a touching spectacle presented itself. The immense assemblage gathered outside the cemetery falling upon its knees and offering a silent prayer. The ceremony concluded, the crowd dispersed quietly.

Nebraska Grain Acreage.

OMAHA, Neb., April 1.-Nebraska grain men and farmers are no longer concerned over the condition of winter wheat. The general committees appointed by grain firms of various sections of the State to examine the fields and ascertain positively the damage resulting from the recent storm have reported favorably. Contrary to the general opinion, few fields have been affected by the cold snap. The fields of wheat that were killed will be planted in corn. Many oat fields, however, were destroyed. In many regions farmers are resowing their oats. The acreage of all grains will be 20 per cent, heavier this year than last.

A Weak Digestion

strange as it may seem, is caused from a lack of that which is never exactly digested-fat. The greatest fact in connection with appears at this point-it is partly digested fat-and the most weakened digestion is quickly strengthened by it.

The only possible help in Consumption is the arrest of waste and renewal of new, healthy tissue. Scott's Emulsion has done wonders in Consumption just this way.
